The life of Apollonius of Tyana Philostratus (the Athenian)

"*o defend the rest. But, said Apollonius, they seem to me to fly from an enemy, whom perhaps we shall meet pursuing them by the print of their feet—and if that is so, their rear should be well secured against their pursuers, as is done in war, and of all creatures you will find the elephant the most observant of military tactics. Besides, if the largest passed first, their passing would not enable the rest to judge whether the depth of the water would suffer them to follow; for in that case, the passage would be easy and practicable to(...)".
