The Singular Case of Sherlock Holmes and Jack the Ripper: And Other Far Fetched Yarns Derek Stewart

It's 1888 and a killer stalks the foggy streets of London: the legendary 'Jack the Ripper' is at large, slicing and dicing his way through the swarming mass of human detritus that makes up the underbelly of the biggest city on Earth.

But who exactly IS he?

Only one man knows - Sherlock Holmes!

Come and join the master consulting detective as he unmasks the most infamous serial killer of all time!

The title story, an intriguing yarn that fuses fact and fiction, is just one in a collection of short stories that share the universal and inevitable theme that ties us all together - DEATH!

ALSO INCLUDES:

Is That You, Johnny?

A defenceless old woman is in fear of her life from visitor who is not welcome, not invited, and possibly not human;

Faith:

A young man, dying of cancer, meets a strange old man with special powers;

The Fountain:

A vain woman in search of eternal youth gets more than she bargained for!

The Murder In The Orient Express:

An old maid meets a man from the Internet...

And Many More!

If you like murder stories, horror stories, short stories - or just have a taste for good old blood and guts! - you will LOVE this!

AUTHOR'S NOTE:

Short works are like mysterious whispers that you catch on the wind for the briefest of times as you walk home alone in the dark; or the shock you get when, turning a corner, you bump into someone you thought long dead - and then realise they are!

In short, they the hardest things to write, and are best left in the hands of masters of the genre like M R James, Conan Doyle, Poe, and Co (NOT Stompe!).

But as they have all croaked (except Co!), I thought I'd give it a whirl!

The shorts you will encounter here are all written to the best of my ability, but I cannot give a guarantee as to their quality.

But I hope you enjoy them anyway!

Thank you for contemplating reading my work. Much appreciated.
